Church and Sunday School

MOKENA
ST. JOHN'S EVANGELICAL CHURCH
"The Hom-Like Church."
Sabbath School meets at 9:30, and you want to be on hand. The school is doing fine under the leadership of the energetic Dep. Supt. and a corps of earnest teachers. "A class for every age."
Preaching services at usual hours. Morning service in German. Subject of sermon: "Is Jesus God's only begotten Son?" Evening subject: "Breaking the Alabaster Box." An inspirational sermon based on the scene in Bethany, with lessons how to serve and gladden the lives of others.

The Lenten season is upon us. Let us make it count in the spiritual life of our people. Let us cultivate the spirit of worship, the habit of prayer, the heart of sympathy, and the upward look of faith. Let us get our people to attend the service regularly. Our energies from now to Easter will be devoted to a deepening and a quickening of the spiritual and life of the church and an ingathering of folks into the Kingdom and the church.

"I did so much for thee; what hast thou done for Me?"

A very cordial invitation to all. If you are a stranger, and looking for a church home, the St. John's church offers to every seeker a warm welcome, a hearty handshake, stirring singing, a comfortable building, practical preaching, friendly folks, a satisfied soul. If this invitation appeals to you, then come and worship at the St. John's church.

Reckless Driving Toll Is One Life Every 42 Minutes On U. S. Highway

Investigators Blame Carelessness of Autoists for Greatest Number of Accidents

Automobile accidents in the United States in 1921 caused the death of 12,500 persons,—one person killed every forty-two minutes day and night. More than 300,000 persons were injured. The fatalities on our highways last year were more than the American dead in the Spanish-American War, while the injured far outnumbered our 221,000 wounded in the World War.

That the automobile hazard is growing steadily is shown by the fact that although accidents on the railroads are decreasing automobile crashes in 1921 increased 4 per cent over 1920.

For more than two years the Baltimore and Ohio railroad has placed men at crossings where large numbers of automobiles pass. These observers note the machines crossing and take down the license numbers of those whose drivers fail to take any precaution.

In 1920 these observers noted 398,000 vehicles and, according to their records, 25,000 drivers failed to take any precautions at highway crossings. In one month of this year 16,177 automobiles were checked by the railroad's observers and 2,972 drivers were reported as having failed to stop, look or listen before crossing the tracks. During the first four months of this year 58,806 machines were observed and the "failures" reached seventeen per cent.

A Few Accidents from Skidding

The impression prevails in some quarters that asphalt pavements are slippery, especially when wet, and consequently are dangerous to drive over. If this were true, accident records would show a large percentage of cases where skidding was the cause of the accident.

A three months' investigation recently made in Maryland discloses the fact that 90 per cent. of automobile accidents are due to speeding. Of fourteen fatal accidents, two were caused by failure to heed the warning at railroad crossings; four by speeding; four by driving on the wrong side of the road, and four by reckless driving. None of the fatal accidents was caused by skidding.

The result of speeding along a public highway at night. Five of three were seriously injured in this accident near Cleveland.

Statistics, from city records in San Francisco on automobile and motorcycle accidents, show 3,609 accidents in 1921. Of this number only 138, or 3.8 per cent were due to skidding. Of the 109 of these occurring on asphalt pavements, 75 per cent were the result of carelessness. Four-fifths of San Francisco's paved streets are of the asphaltic types. Owing to rains in winter and fogs in summer, they are in a wet condition most of the time, so the slight percentage of accidents due to skidding is at once apparent.

The tabulation of an average thousand reports on causes of automobile collisions, filed with the claim department of the Inter-Insurance Exchange, Los Angeles, shows only 6 per cent. of the accidents were due to skidding. Forty per cent. of these skidding accidents resulted from imprudent attempts to turn too quickly; 40 per cent. over-speeding and only 20 per cent. of all accidents were due to unavoidable skidding.

Many Collisions in Iowa

A rigid investigation by the Iowa State Highway Commission during 1921 showed that of 4,683 accidents which occurred in that state in which 359 persons were killed and 4,195 injured, 114 accidents or 2.4 per cent of the total were due to skidding, and Iowa has practically no asphalt roads. The great percentage of accidents in Iowa were collisions. Of these there were 1,210, with 1,010 persons killed and injured.

Asphaltic pavements have not caused any appreciable number of automobile accidents. While the tractive resistance of asphaltic concrete is relatively low, it is not so low as to cause excessive slipperiness. As a matter of fact, statistics prove that asphaltic pavements are less slippery than are the other so-called permanent types.

Wanted in Ind., Found in Mokena

About noon on Wednesday, a Ford car drove in the Hentsch Bros. garage at Mokena, and two men got out. They said they had come from Indiana. Fred Hentsch asked them to step in his office to wait. As the men entered, one of them showed he was a deputy sheriff, and had come for a young man, a nephew of Mr. Faft. The man sought was accused of being implicated in a grocery store burglary at Low, Ind., 6 miles south of Cedar Lake.

The man sought was in the garage office, and the Indiana sheriff told him he had come to get him without a State warrant if he would return willingly; otherwise he would be held here until a State warrant could be issued, which would mean an added expense of $25 against the accused one. The young fellow finally consented to return to Indiana. The sheriff accompanied him to the home of his uncle to get his suitcase. He had been staying at the Faft home for the past two weeks.

Deputy Walter Fisher of Mokena was consulted in the matter, and he in turn took the matter up with Sheriff John Walker of Joliet. The latter stated the man could not be taken out of the State without a State warrant unless he would return of his own accord.

MOKENA

Mrs. George Lauffer, who has been ill, was taken to the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, the past week. Mrs. Lauffer also sustained a quite painful injury when she cut the palm of her hand on a broken lamp chimney.

Scarlet fever has made its appearance around Mokena. The home of Henry Yunker is under quarantine, Clyde Yunker being the patient.

Mrs. Wm. P. Stoehr of Welcome, Minn., is visiting at the John Wannemacher home in Mokena.

The sale of Poland Chinas held Saturday by C. H. and J. E. Hirsch was not well attended on account of the cold weather. The average price was $38.00.

Fire Marshall Herman Schweser has ruled that all paper and rubbish when burned in the open will have to be burned in wire baskets in order to lessen fire hazards.

Light Heart Goes With Innocence. Light-heartedness is the gay companion of innocence; and when innocence goes, they soon trip off together looking for something younger.—Sir J. M. Barrie.

WHITE STORE BUYS BANKRUPT STOCK

The White Store of 405 Cass St., Joliet and well known to the people of Mokena, Frankfort and surrounding communities, has purchased the entire bankrupt stock of the Chicago Store, 818 N. Chicago St., and the Globe Store, 217 Jefferson St., Joliet, for 50 cents on the dollar. The stock was sold by the order of the U. S. District Court. Thru this stroke of enterprise The White Store is enabled to offer exceptional bargains at exceptionally low prices as outlined in their big adv., appearing in this issue of the News-Bulletin.

Celebrate Tenth Anniversary

A large company of relatives surprised Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schmuhl, Monday night, in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in a social manner. A sumptuous luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Schmuhl reside on the Wm. Schmuhl farm in New Lenox township.

Mokena Has Hard Coal Shortage

Mokena people who have hard coal stoves and who have not got a supply of hard coal on hand are up against it local dealers being unable to supply hard coal. As the result of this situation the Mokena people are buying hard coal and coke in Joliet and Chicago and are having it hauled here by truck.

Clouds.

The sky was never empty and never was idle; the clouds were continuously at play for our benefit. Over against us, from our station on the hills, we saw them piled and dissolved, condensed and shifted, blotting the blue with sullen rain-spots stretching, breeze-fretted, into dappled fields of gray, bursting into an explosion of light or melting into a drizzle of silver.—Henry James.

Origin of "Hustings."

Hustings was the name of an ancient court held in the city of London. In its present sense the word denotes the place where members of parliament were nominated before the ballot act of 1872 rejected the form of nominating openly. From this it has come to be applied to any election on a platform.

Why the Salmon Is Pink.

Men of science were long puzzled to know why the various salmon and trout have red or pink flesh. Now they believe that the color comes from the food they eat. All of the salmon family are fond of shellfish.

Daily Thought.

No one returns with good will to the place which has done him a mischief.—Phaedrus.

Mokena Man, 72 Stricken By Stroke While Home Alone

Christian Schenkel, aged 72 years, well known old-time Mokena resident, was stricken with a stroke of paralysis, about 2 o'clock Saturday, while alone in his home, south of Mokena. His right arm, right side of his head and throat were affected by the stroke, but not his right leg. Early Saturday morning he got up and walked to Mokena to the home of Frank Hirsch, Sr., where he had been working off and on. When he got there he was unable to talk. He was taken to the Will County Poor Farm, where it was said he had shown some signs of improvement Sunday, when he was able to swallow, but his speech had not yet returned. Mr. Schenkel has been living alone for the past several weeks, but still managed to be about.

HENRY BRODTHUN OF TINLEY PARK, 67 PASSES BEYOND

Henry Brodthun, aged 67 years, who has resided in Tinley Park since 1888, passed away at his home, early Sunday morning, following a brief illness. Mr. Brodthun had been employed in Chicago until his illness prevented him from leaving home.

Mr. Brodthun was born in Germany on July 10, 1855. In 1876 he was united in marriage with Miss Caroline Sanse in the Fatherland. To this union thirteen children were born, six sons and seven daughters. The six sons and one daughter died. In 1888 Mr. Brodthun and family immigrated to America, and settled in Tinley Park, where they have since resided.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the late home to the Zion Lutheran church, Rev. A. Buddenhagen officiating. The deceased was also a Woodman, being a member of the Tinley Park Camp. He is survived by his widow, six daughters—Mrs. Edward Stevens, Mrs. George Stevens, Mrs. Wm. Martensen, Mrs. George Hopman, Mrs. Walter Koehler and Mrs. Dick Siebrandt, and seven grand children.

FRED VOGT ANSWERS CALL

Fred Vogt, aged 40 years, and life-long resident of Bremen township, died at his home Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, following a lingering illness. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, Rev. A. Buddenhagen of the Zion Lutheran church officiating.

LUTHER LEAGUE OF TINLEY PARK HOLDS UNIQUE BAZAR

The Luther League gave a unique social at Saenger hall on Thursday night of this week, when they held what was called "A Birthday Bazaar." There were 12 tables, each one representing a month of the year. The tables were prettily decorated. Each guest registered and sat at the table representing the month in which his or her birthday comes. The hall was nicely decorated, and a fine time was enjoyed by all.

A large number of "flu" cases have been reported in this section. The cases are showing marked improvement.

"YOU POOR THING!"

SYNOPSIS.—General factotum in the house of her sister Ina, wife of Herbert Deacon, in the small town of Warbleton, Lulu Bett leads a dull, cramped existence, with which she is constantly at enmity, though apparently satisfied with her lot. Bobby Larkin, recently graduated high-school youth, is secretly enamored of Deacon's elder daughter, Diana. The family is excited over the news of an approaching visit from Deacon's brother Ninian, whom he had not seen for many years. Unexpectedly, Ninian arrives. Thus he becomes acquainted with Lulu first and understands her position in the house. To Lulu, Ninian is a much-traveled man of the world, and even the slight interest which he takes in her is appreciated, because it is something new in her life. At an outing which the family takes, Ninian and Lulu become confidential. He expresses his disapproval of her treatment as a sort of dependent in the Deacon home. Diana and Bobby, in the course of "soft nothings," discuss the possibility of eloping and "surprising the whole school." Lulu has awakened to pleasant possibilities concerning Ninian's intentions toward herself. Ninian takes the family for a "good time" in the adjacent city. At supper, after the theater, as part of a joke Lulu repeats the words of the civil marriage ceremony, with Ninian. Herbert remembers that a civil wedding is binding in the state, and inasmuch as he is a magistrate, Ninian and Lulu are legally married. They go honeymooning.

V—Continued.

Mrs. Bett sat on the porch restored and pleasant when the family returned. Di and Bobby had walked home with Jenny.

"Look here," said Dwight Herbert, "who is it sits home and has ice cream put in her lap like a queen?"

"Vanilly or chocolate?" Mrs. Bett demanded.

"Chocolate, mamma!" Ina cried, with the breeze in her voice.

"Vanilly sets better," Mrs. Bett said. They sat with her on the porch while she ate. Ina rocked on a creaking board. Dwight swung a leg over the railing. Monona sat pulling her skirt over her feet, and humming all on one note. There was no moon, but the warm dusk had a quality of transparency as if it were lit in all its particles.

The gate opened, and some one came up the walk. They looked, and it was Lulu.

"Well, if it ain't Miss Lulu Bett!" Dwight cried involuntarily, and Ina cried out something.

"How did you know?" Lulu asked. "Know! Know what?"

"That it ain't Lulu Deacon. Hello, mamma."

She passed the others and kissed her mother.

"Say," said Mrs. Bett placidly. "And I just ate up the last spoonful o' cream."

"Ain't Lulu Deacon!" Ina's voice rose and swelled richly. "What you talking?"

"Didn't he write to you?" Lulu asked.

"Not a word." Dwight answered this. "All we've had we had from you—the last from Savannah, Georgia."

"Savannah, Georgia," said Lulu, and laughed.

They could see that she was dressed well, in dark red cloth, with a little tilting hat and a drooping veil. She did not seem in any wise upset, nor, save for that nervous laughter, did she show her excitement.

"Well, but he's here with you, isn't he?" Dwight demanded. "Isn't he here? Where is he?"

"Must be 'most to Oregon by this time," Lulu said.

"Oregon!"

"You see," said Lulu, "he had another wife."

"Why, he had not!" exclaimed Dwight absurdly.

"Yes. He hasn't seen her for fifteen years and he thinks she's dead. But he isn't sure."

"Nonsense," said Dwight. "Why, of course she's dead if he thinks so."

"I had to be sure," said Lulu.

At first dumb before this, Ina now cried out: "Monona! Go upstairs to bed at once."

"It's only quarter to," said Monona, with assurance.

"Do as mamma tells you."

"But—"

"Monona!"

She went, kissing them all good-night and taking her time about it. Everything was suspended while she kissed them and departed, walking slowly backward.

"Married?" said Mrs. Bett with tardy apprehension. "Lulle, was your husband married?"

"Yes," Lulu said, "my husband was married, mother."

"Mercy," said Ina. "Think of anything like that in our family."

"Well, go on—go on!" Dwight cried. "Tell us about it."

Lulu spoke in a monotone, with her old manner of hesitation:

"We were going to Oregon. First down to New Orleans and then out to California and up the coast." On this she paused and sighed. "Well, then at Savannah, Georgia, he said he thought I better know, first. So he told me."

"Yes—well, what did he say?"

Dwight demanded irritably.

"Cora Waters," said Lulu. "Cora Waters. She married him down in San Diego, eighteen years ago. She went to South America with him."

"Well, he never let us know of it, if she did," said Dwight.

"No. She married him just before he went. Then in South America, after two years, she ran away again. That's all he knows."

"That's a pretty story," said Dwight contemptuously.

"He says if she'd been alive, she'd been after him for a divorce. And she never has been, so he thinks she must be dead. The trouble is," Lulu said again, "he wasn't sure. And I had to be sure."

"Well, but mercy," said Ina, "couldn't he find out now?"

"It might take a long time," said Lulu simply, "and I didn't want to stay and not know."

"Well, then, why didn't he say so here?" Ina's indignation mounted.

"He would have. But you know how sudden everything was. He said he thought about telling us right there in the restaurant, but of course that'd been hard—wouldn't it? And then he felt so sure she was dead."

"Why did he tell you at all, then?" demanded Ina, whose processes were simple.

"Yes. Well! Why indeed?" Dwight Herbert brought out these words with a curious emphasis.

"I thought that, just at first," Lulu said, "but only just at first. Of course

"Well, go on—go on!" Dwight cried. "Tell us about it."

"I do not see the necessity."

Dwight's voice was on edge. Then too he said "do not," always with Dwight betokening the finalities.

"Why, what would they think?" Lulu asked, troubled.

"What difference does it make what they think?"

"Why," said Lulu slowly, "I shouldn't like—you see they might—why, Dwight, I think we'll have to tell them."

"You do! You think the disgrace of bigamy in this family is something the whole town will have to know about?"

Lulu looked at him with parted lips. "Say," she said, "I never thought about it being that."

Dwight laughed. "What do you think it was? And whose disgrace is it, pray?"

Ninian's," said Lulu.

"Ninian's! Well, he's gone. But you're here. And I'm here. Folks'll feel sorry for you. But the disgrace—that'd reflect on me, see?"

"But if we don't tell, what'll they think then?"

Said Dwight: "They'll think what they always think when a wife leaves her husband. They'll think you couldn't get along. That's all."

"I should hate that," said Lulu.

"Well, I should hate the other, let me tell you."

"Dwight, Dwight," said Ina. "Let's go in the house. I'm afraid they'll hear—"

As they rose, Mrs. Bett plucked at her returned daughter's sleeve.

"Lulle," she said, "was his other wife—was she there?"

"No, no, mother. She wasn't there."

Mrs. Bett's lips moved, repeating the words, "Then that ain't so bad," she said. "I was afraid maybe she turned you out."

"No," Lulu said, "it wasn't that bad, mother."

Mrs. Bett brightened. In little matters, she quarreled and resented, but the large issues left her blank.

Through some indeterminate sense of the importance due this crisis, the Deacons entered their parlor. Dwight lighted that high, central burner and faced about, saying:

"In fact, I simply will not have it, Lulu! You expect, I take it, to make your home with us in the future, on the old terms."

"Well—"

"I mean, did Ninian give you any money?"

"No. He didn't give me any money—only enough to get home on. And I kept my suit—why!" she flung her head back, "I wouldn't have taken any money!"

"That means," said Dwight, "that you will have to continue to live here—on the old terms, and of course I'm quite willing that you should. Let me tell you, however, that this is on condition—on condition that this disgraceful business is kept to our-

She made no attempt to combat him now. She looked back at him, quivering, and in a great surprise, but she said nothing.

"Truly, Lulu," said Ina, "wouldn't that be best? They'll talk anyway. But this way they'll only talk about you, and the other way it'd be about all of us."

Lulu said only: "But the other way would be the truth."

Dwight's eyes narrowed: "My dear Lulu," he said, "are you sure of that?"

"Sure?"

"Yes. Did he give you any proofs?"

"Proofs?"

"Letters—documents of any sort? Any sort of assurance that he was speaking the truth?"

"Why, no," said Lulu. "Proofs—no. He told me."

"He told you?"

"Why that was hard enough to have to do. It was terrible for him to have to do. What proofs—" She stopped, puzzled.

"Didn't it occur to you," said Dwight, "that he might have told you that because he didn't want to have to go on with it?"

As she met his look some power seemed to go from Lulu. She sat down, looked weakly at them, and within her closed lips her jaw was slightly fallen. She said nothing. And seeing on her skirt a spot of dust she began to rub at that.

"Why, Dwight!" Ina cried, and moved to her sister's side.

"I may as well tell you," he said, "that I myself have no idea that Ninian told you the truth. He was always imagining things—you saw that. I know him pretty well—have been more or less in touch with him the whole time. In short, I haven't the least idea he was ever married before."

Lulu continued to rub at her skirt.

"I never thought of that," she said.

"Look here," Dwight went on persuasively, "hadn't you and he had some little tiff when he told you?"

"No—no! Why, not once. Why, we weren't a bit like you and Ina."

She spoke simply and from her heart and without guile.

"Evidently not," Dwight said dryly.

"If everything is over between you, why should you?"

The Urge of Success.

Once the task of success gets you, there is born an eternal urge unsatisfied with inferior things. It compels success. The problems that discourage weaklings put fire into the blood and make men irresistible. The neighbors wonder how it all happens. It doesn't happen. It's just nature asserting herself and worthy youth coming into his own.—Exchange.

Losing Aspirations.

Men lose their high aspirations as they lose their intellectual tastes, because they have not time or opportunity for indulging them.—J. S. MILL.

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 11

THE SPIRIT OF PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart. O God, thou wilt not despise—Psalm 51:17.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 6:5-15; Luke 15:20-24; John 4:23, 24.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How Two Men Prayed.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Pray.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Prayer that God Answers.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Secret to Prevailing Prayer.

I. Men Ought Always to Pray (v. 1).

Prayer is absolutely necessary to the spiritual life. It is to the spiritual life what breathing is to the physical life. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstance—in times of sorrow and burdens for strength to endure; in times of joy and success for grace to behave aright. Prayer ought to be persisted in even when the answer is not immediately seen. God does hear and answer prayer even when we do not understand the mysteries of delay.

II. The Urgent Prayer of a Widow (vv. 2-8).

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was to prove the justice of her claim by her persistence. Even this did not gain access to his heart, for he feared not God nor regarded men. He complied with her request in order to get rid of her.

The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge and can be teased into compliance, but rather that if such action can be secured on the part of a godless judge by persistence, how much surer will be the help of God to those who cry unto Him day and night.

The helpless widow pictures the church in this age suffering the deprivation of her rights. It is not the church praying for vengeance upon her enemies, but suing for the possession of her rights by virtue of the covenant relation in Christ. The inheritance of the church will be actualized at the coming of Christ. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is so vital to Christianity, and why such disastrous consequences follow the loss of the Blessed Hope.

The apparent delay in the vindication of the church may dishearten some and cause others to mock (II Peter 3:4). Jesus' question should be a solemn warning against allowing the apparent delay of the coming of the Lord to crowd out our praying. Though many may give up we should be assured that genuine faith will abide, and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ shall be fulfilled. We can be sure of God.

III. The Prayer of the Proud Pharisee (vv. 9-12).

1. He Took a Striking Attitude (v. 11). The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of an ostentatious position. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

2. He Prayed With Himself (vv. 11, 12). He used the name of God, but it was really a soliloquy. He pretended to be thanking God when really he was rehearsing his own goodness—complimenting himself. His whole thought centered in himself. He congratulated himself for (1) his morality (vv. 11). He thanked God that he was not as other men are, such as extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as the publican who was standing afar off. (2) His Religious Merits (v. 12). He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did more than was required, implying that God was under obligation to him.

IV. The Prayer of the Humble Publican (v. 13).

In striking contrast with this supposed saint stood the publican whose shame kept him from even

COULD HARDLY DO HER WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Eat, Sleep and Feel Better Every Way

Chicago, Ill.—"I was weak and run-down and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time, and dizzy, and could not sleep and had no appetite. I tried different medicines for years, but they did not help me. Then I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for other women and gave it a trial. I began to eat better and could sleep, and consider it a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to my friends and will never be without it."

—Mrs. M. OHLEN, 3640 S. Marshfield Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

It is such letters as these that testify to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This woman speaks from the fullness of her heart. She describes as correctly as she can her condition, first the symptoms that bothered her the most, and later the disappearance of those symptoms. It is a sincere expression of gratitude.

For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

Choices in the Life of Faith

By REV. J. R. SCHAFER

Director of Evening Classes, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—Is not the whole land before thee? Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan.—Gen. 13:9-11.

Some of the most familiar words in our language are the least known.

Test it for yourself. Try to define some common monosyllables and you will express your difficulty in some such phrase, "I know what it means but I just cannot express it." The word "faith" furnishes us material for the experiment. What is faith? Countless ideas and opinions seek to unravel the content of this little word. Synonyms are employed to confusion. Little understood, among those who use it most frequently, is this wonderful word of a Christian's vocabulary.

Most of our thinking of faith is in terms of specific acts, without recognizing that behind the act of faith is an attitude.

Faith is "the new nature" in the soul that expresses itself through the same five physical senses as does "the old nature." The life of God implanted within manifests its presence and growth through the activities of mind and body; these become "acts of faith." But all the acts of a Christian are not necessarily acts of faith. He is capable of acts of unbelief while living a life of faith. These constitute the strange inconsistencies which characterize men and women of God.

Two men stood on a hilltop in the long ago and surveyed the landscape in every direction. They had lived together, sharing some very unusual experiences. The time had come when they must separate. The older offers the younger first choice. On three sides are brown barren hills—not much to attract one who has grown rich in flocks and herds. Towards the south spreads out a luxurious valley watered by the Jordan. This caught the eye of the younger and he hesitated not in his choice, so we read, "Lot chose him all the plain of the Jordan," which was as the garden of the Lord, leaving the scanty, uninviting pastures of Hebron for his Uncle Abram.

This was a choice of one who was living a life of faith. It does not look like it, for doubtless Lot's decision was largely determined by sense and sight. He acted here just like a man of the world. No faith was expressed in such a choice. "He pitched his tent towards Sodom." Sodom did not deter him, however, for he justified his action by saying God would keep him, and Sodom needed the knowledge of Jehovah as much as Canaan. But the results of Lot's choice were disastrous. The steps were downward, for he had not acted in faith. Slowly but surely he was drawn into the awful cesspool of iniquity and so identified with it that we should never have known him as "a man of God" had not the apostle Peter referred to him as "righteous."

What a warning he is to Twentieth-century Christians, illustrating the foolish, worldly choices we can make and their irrevocable consequences. How many Christians have repeated Lot's experience simply through a choice of residence—a chance to make money—a call to a better social environment. Alas, their path led away from God and His truth. Broken fellowship, despised testimony, ungodly alliances, lost property, soul captivity, eternal ruin—"saved so as by fire," but everything gone. God calls, "Come ye out from among them and be ye separate." Follow the path of Abram to Hebron, which means "fellowship." We must needs be careful of our choices as Christians. Canaan has its Hebron, but it also has its Sodom. The Land of Promise offers heights of fellowship with God; it also dazzles the eye with luxuriant plains of tempting fleshiness and sin.

Look at the rewards given to the choices of faith! F. B. Meyer points out:

1. God comes nearer than ever before. The path of separation is a lonely one—not many earthly friends are travelling it, but God is there. What a companion! "We can walk and talk with the King."

O holy Savior, Friend unseen. Since on Thine arm Thou bidst me lean, Help me throughout life's changing scene, By faith to cling to Thee.

Though faith and hope are often tried, I ask not, need not, aught beside, So safe, so calm, so satisfied, The soul that clings to Thee."

2. God does better for us than we could do for ourselves. We plan and scheme and bargain, and what does it all amount to, if God is left out of our calculations? Ask poor Lot. He will take you to a heap of blackened, charred ruins. That is all that is left of his property. He will point to a pillar of salt—the monument to the unbelief of his family and their sad fate. He will turn the pages of history that recount the story of Moab and Ammon and will tell you shamefacedly that such is the result of his sin. I wonder if we have realized what it means to be saved but to suffer the loss of all our works, in the fire of the judgment day.

Health Brings Beauty

All Women Can Look Well if in Health.

Champaign, Ill.—"Ever since I developed into womanhood I have been troubled with functional disturbances and fainting spells. I was under a physician's care, but no medicine I took seemed to do me any good. A friend, who had gone through the same experience as myself and had found such help by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, urged me to try it. I tried it and to my great delight the Prescription brought about a wonderful change, every organ functioning correctly. I can speak in the highest praise of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. S. W. Knott, 1212 N. Market St.

Attribute Their Success to Newspaper Advertising

In an interview today, Mr. Warren Wright, President of the Calumet Baking Powder Company, strongly advocated the use of newspaper advertising, and points to Calumet's success as proof of his statement.

"Calumet sales are 2½ times as much as any other brand," stated Mr. Wright, "and we attribute this to our lavish use of newspaper space. We believe that the newspaper is the most direct medium we can use in getting our message across to the housewife, and we know from our experience covering thirty years that the housewife will respond to newspaper advertising quicker than she will to any other form of advertising."

"The housewives have confidence in newspaper advertisements because they know that the newspapers set up high standards for their advertisers. It is for that reason that the housewife looks to the newspaper for information on products in which she is interested."

A few days later the average man begins to boast of the good deed he did by mistake.

DYED HER DRAPERIES, SKIRT AND A SWEATER WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can dye or tint faded, shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, hangings, draperies, everything like new. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed, even if you have never dyed before. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade, or run. So easy to use.—Advertisement.

AT AGE 71, FINDS HOUSEWORK EASY

Mrs. Jennings Says Tanlac Restored Strength After "Flu" Attack and Ended Stomach Trouble.

"I was almost an invalid and Tanlac built me up to a strong, well woman. I consider it my best friend," is the grateful and characteristic statement of Mrs. Emma Jennings, residing at Clearwater, Cal.

"An attack of the grippe left me completely broken down. My stomach felt sick, my legs and arms so tired and weak I could hardly use them, and I scarcely had energy and strength to dress myself. I just kept getting weaker in spite of all I could do and, as I am seventy-one, I had begun to think my age was against me ever getting well."

"Almost from the day I began taking Tanlac I commenced to feel stronger. So I kept picking up with every bottle until now I can easily do all my housework, for I am feeling fine. I wouldn't be without Tanlac in the house. It is just grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Autoists Heed Deputy's Warning

Deputy Walter Fisher of Mokena, on orders from the office of Sheriff John Walker of Joliet, has issued a warning to all auto owners of Mokena and vicinity that they must have their auto licenses by next Monday. If any auto owner is caught on that day with an old license, or without a license, he will be promptly arrested. No partiality will be shown. If a license has been applied for, the auto owner must show a notary's receipt for same. If caught without a license, the fine and costs will run to $12, and the cost of a license in addition would mean an outlay of $20, whereas the payment of $8 for a license will mean a saving of $12.

Anyone arrested for running a car without a license will be subject to a fine of $50.00.

Sheriff Walker contemplates sending a State man to Mokena next week to check up on the auto licenses. Every auto owner who has not got his 1923 license had better get busy and apply for same before next Monday.

News of the Week Cut Down for Busy Readers

Washington

Postmaster General Work at Washington ordered that after February 5 and until further notice, American money sent to France or Belgium by international postal money orders will be changed at the rate of seven cents a franc.

The Agriculture department at Washington announced that sale of national forest timber in 1922 amounted to $2,307,000, setting a record and indicating the end of the depression in the lumber industry.

The senate at Washington has approved the provision in the army bill for 125,000 enlisted men and 12,000 officers.

The Lenroot rural credits bill was passed by the senate at Washington by a vote of 69 to 0.

Sentences of 21 men convicted by court-martial as a result of the race riots in 1917 at Houston, Tex., have been commuted in the last fifteen months, official records at Washington show.

The British embassy at Washington issued a statement denying Chancellor of the Exchequer Stanley Baldwin, head of the British debt mission to the United States, had "criticized or aspersed" the American people.

President Harding at Washington intends to nominate Senator Miles Polinder of Washington, whose term expires March 4, as ambassador to Peru.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes at Washington plans to appeal to the states to pass more stringent legislation to enforce prohibition, under the concurrent section of the eighteenth amendment.

No more permits to import narcotics will be granted until the total amount of narcotic imports which should be allowed during the year has been decided, the federal control board announced at Washington.

President Harding contemplates submitting to congress at Washington next week new terms for refunding the British war debt accepted by the British cabinet.

Domestic

One man was killed and several others were badly bruised and shaken when an express train, speeding into Chicago, crashed into the rear of a freight on the Illinois Central tracks there.

Flood waters from the Coldwater river covered the little town of Savage, in Tate county, Mississippi, adding to the suffering caused by a terrific wind and rain storm which swept over the region.

Claude R. Bruner, a local automobile salesman, was killed in an automobile accident at Momence, twelve miles northeast of Kankakee, Ill., when his car skidded into a ditch on the Dixie highway.

The death total from the tidal waves which struck the entire Hawaiian group is estimated at Hilo from ten to twelve, all Japanese fishermen. The damage at Hilo is estimated at $110,000 and at Maui, $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. Guam and Samoa report no damage was done there.

F. G. Bullen, murderer, was taken from his coffin and electrocuted at the state penitentiary at Little Rock after physicians found the first electrical charge had failed to kill him.

The new Pacific coast "dry navy" is watching a two-masted schooner which has hovered twelve miles off shore at San Francisco in the last two days and believed to be a liquor runner.

Three persons were killed and fifty-three injured when a storage tank at Springfield, Mass., exploded. Wreckage was hurled into the streets, in some cases hurting passing pedestrians.

An eight-hour day, with time and one-half for overtime, was awarded 15,000 signalmen by the railroad labor board at Chicago as a reward for their refusal to join the shopmen's strike.

R. E. Payton, prominent rancher, and until a few days ago a member of the state house of representatives from the Sixth legislative district, killed his wife, Mrs. Lulu Payton; his two children, Jean, eight, and Richard, five, with an ax, and then slashed his own throat near Phoenix, Ariz.

Congress is asked to call a constitutional convention to consider repealing the eighteenth amendment, in a resolution introduced at Albany, N. Y., by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York.

Four children were burned to death at Spragg, near Waynesburg, Pa., when fire destroyed the farmhouse of Earl Tennant, their father.

The steamship Paris of the fleet of ships containing anti-Bolshevik refugees arrived at Manila, revealing that her sister ship, the Ajax, was sunk off Formosa last week. Seventeen persons died.

The Commercial Cable company announced at New York that the Honolulu-Midway cable, which carries messages to Guam, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, China and Japan, has broken.

Personal

Mrs. Rachel Jackson Lawrence, daughter of Andrew Jackson's adopted son, last surviving member of the Hermitage household of "Old Hickory," died at her country home near Nashville, Tenn., at ninety.

Albert Brown Chandler, eighty-three, former president of the Postal Telegraph company, is dead at his home in West Randolph, Vt.

Gen. Tamemoto Kuroki, seventy-eight, known as the hero of Mukden, where he defeated the Russian army, is dead at Tokyo of pneumonia.

Mrs. Eva A. Ingersoll, widow of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, who was noted more than twenty years ago for his agnostic utterances, is dead in her Gramercy Park (New York) home, in her eighty-third year. She was born in Illinois.

Dr. William French Smith, president of the Mexican Telephone and Telegraph company, died at his home at Somerville, Mass.

Henry Clews, head of the banking firm of Henry Clews & Co., died at his home, 27 West Fifty-first street, New York, late Wednesday, in his eighty-third year. He had been ailing for some time.

Foreign

A strong flow of gas struck on the Marla Biggs farm, two miles southwest of Teft in Jasper county, Ind., has created much excitement.

The street car strike has been brought to an end through the efforts of Secretary Adolfo de la Huerta. Two soldiers and ten workers were killed during the strike.

Nine persons were killed by French soldiers at Ingelheim, in the Mayence area, according to a dispatch from Berlin.

A London dispatch says contracts for building two new capital ships, as allowed under the arms conference treaties, have been awarded by Great Britain. Wages paid in building the ships will amount to $50,000,000.

Field Marshal von Ludendorff was attacked by mobs of workmen, who called him a murderer, when he came to address the "German union" at Klagenfurt, Austria.

A Rome dispatch says the Greek press, inspired by the government, is spreading reports of impending American loans with the object of improving the exchange value of its currency while buying foreign money.

Montevideo dispatches state that the revolution in the state of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, is assuming unexpected violence. The movement, which formerly was localized, is now general.

Newfoundland is marooned by icebergs and St. Johns is entirely shut off from the sea, according to Capt. Rhude of the steamship Stanley, which arrived at Loughsboro, N. S.

Because of the refusal of the Paris senate finance committee to examine the budget until it has been balanced by the chamber of deputies, the budgets cannot be voted on until March 1.

Premier Hughes having resigned, Stanley M. Bruce, nationalist, has accepted an invitation by the governor general to form a ministry.

The Siberian district duma, an anti-Bolshevik organization, is planning a new attack on Vladivostok with an army of 5,000 men, already organized, a Tokyo dispatch says.

The French consulate at Koenigsburg was wrecked by a German mob, while members of the allies' control commission stationed there were attacked by students. Colonel Blanchard, a Frenchman, was badly beaten.

The soviet government at Vladivostok has issued deportation orders to eight thousand Russians, most of them former officials and czarist sympathizers. They will be sent to European Russia.

Fourteen persons were killed and more than forty injured, it is estimated, in a street battle at Mexico City, in front of labor headquarters. The fight followed the sniping of passing street cars by "reds" who resented the maintenance of street car traffic by men who agreed with the tramway company to end the strike.

One hundred and fifty miners are dead as the result of an explosion of fire damp in a mine at Beuthen, Polish Prussia. Six hundred men were entombed at first.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

LOVE OF SOLITUDE

THE truly great, the large-souled men and women who delight in going afield in the mystic realm of thought, you will find are ardent lovers of solitude.

They are never lonely wherever they may be, for they have found the way to happiness by getting acquainted with themselves, whose companionship they prefer to any other.

Washington chose solitude when he prayed for strength and guidance in the forests; Lincoln knew nothing of loneliness when he lay upon the floor of his log cabin before the glow of a hearth fire studying by its faint light and pondering the subject matter of his lessons; the late John Wanamaker solved his most difficult business problems in privacy.

The men and women of exclusion, illuminate the world by dazzling achievements, born to their in their quiet hours of isolation. Their works flare up like magic torches to light the paths of the faltering and disheartened.

The greatest writers do their best work in solitude, often in the night-time, when voices are hushed and silence is supreme.

And so do painters and presidents, kings and capitalists, students and inventors.

There is nothing more inspiring to thinking minds than quietude; nothing so grandly sublime and impressive as a canopy of stars in a still night when one is far away from the noisy haunts of men with one's own thoughts.

Only in solitude can man find himself, whence he came and stirred the people of his time with such oratory as had never been heard.

Real nobility of the soul dwells only in the men and women who care nothing for social gatherings and frivolities. Such men and women prefer to be alone with their muses, where they find their greatest pleasure in study, meditation and exploration, from which the human family ultimately derive benefit.

The best in science, in art and in literature comes from the people who choose seclusion in preference to the glamour of bright lights and the folly of merry-making among turbulent crowds, barely able to find their way about, add up a column of figures, or to tell offhand the number of square feet in a square mile.

GETHSEMANE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

DO NOT think of Christ as God, Some deity beyond the sky; I think of Christ as one who trod This earth, and had to live, to die, And die to live—I think of Him Finding His way through paths as dim As these of mine, as full of wrong— With just His faith to keep Him strong.

I do not think of Christ as one Removed, a deity apart, But one a-weary when the sun Brought rest at last to limb and heart.

I picture Him a man of toil, A brother of the common soil, A brother of the sea and road, A plain religion, simple code.

I think of Christ as One who went The very way that I must go, Who met and mastered each event And learned our common lot to know.

I think of Christ as one who stood With mortal men in brotherhood, This thought has brought me to my knees— We both have known Gethsemane.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

YOUR ENEMIES

ONE of the most successful public men in this country began life by making an enemy. This enemy was the kind of an enemy that Mark Twain called "permanent and reliable."

He was on the job all the time. He had a diabolical ingenuity, which he employed in devising ways and means to keep the public man out of office and to blight his political ambitions. Sometimes he succeeded. Often he didn't.

For the very fact of his enmity kept the other man keyed up to the highest pitch.

He knew that a single mistake of judgment would bring his enemy down upon him. He avoided even the appearance of evil lest he be put into a false position.

And he himself confesses today that he owes his present eminence, which is very great, to the keenness and alertness of this implacable enemy.

We never succeed without battles, and battles are always between enemies.

The course of success is as rough as the course of true love.

Moving along slowly and easily dulls the senses, as slipping downstream over the water in a canoe induces drowsiness.

To go upstream in a boat you must battle with the current. The battle develops muscles, and after a few of them you make much better progress. You must meet and match brains with those of other men.

If they are strong and energetic, and cunning and crafty, it will take all the mental alertness you have to defeat them.

But whether you win or lose in the preliminary skirmishes, every little battle sharpens your wits and strengthens your determination.

Don't be afraid of enemies. Do not make them unnecessarily, but unless you have a few of them, and a few able ones, you will be very seriously handicapped in the game you are playing.

Mother's Cook Book

To be a strong hand in the dark to another in the time of need, to be a cup of strength to a human soul in a crisis of weakness, is to know the glory of life.—Hugh Black.

THE FAMILY FOOD

IF THE mother in the home is not interested enough in the welfare of her family to read and keep informed in regard to the proper feeding of her family, how can the health of a nation be conserved?

It is not necessary that she be a trained teacher of household economics to be able to understand the balancing of a menu or the rationing of food. Just the intelligent reading of some of the countless articles in books, magazines and papers will be a sufficient guide. In case of illness, of course, the physician's advice should always be followed, but much ill health would be eliminated if more study were given to proper foods.

Fruits and vegetables are the great properly blended tonics and foods which contain wonderful aids to digestion and the proper functioning of the nervous system and vital organs, and furnish bone and tissue building elements.

Fruits and vegetables can be procured the year round and the neglect of their use will be some sort of a breakdown in the health.

We need all the acids, mineral salts and vitamins just as nature put them together, so when possible uncooked fruits and vegetables should be served to conserve these valuable properties.

If we use the fruits and vegetables as they come in season or that we are able to store for winter use, like the onion, beets, squash, celery, rutabaga, cabbage and carrot, we may, at little expense, have a variety of vegetables. For fruits we have the winter keeping apple; citrus fruits are with us all the year, and during the months when they are used and enjoyed the most they are fortunately the most plentiful and cheapest.

Parsnips will soon be with us, as well as salsify—both splendid vegetables which we will do well to serve as often as the family can be persuaded to enjoy them. Try this combination—it is not common:

Scalloped Parsnips With Tomato.

Fry a medium-sized onion in a tablespoonful of fat until a golden brown. Add one pint of stewed tomato, season with salt and pepper, a bit of cayenne and a pinch of clove or two whole cloves, one teaspoonful of sugar. Simmer until a smooth mixture is obtained. Place a layer of diced, boiled, salted parsnips in a shallow baking dish, then add a layer of the tomato sauce and repeat, having a layer of parsnips on top. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of cheese and cover with one-fourth of a cupful of buttered bread crumbs. Brown in a hot oven.

Fairly Warned.

Members of the faculty of one of our universities tell a story of the days when a certain distinguished educator was a tutor in charge of student discipline at a New England college—a sort of protector, apparently. On one occasion he was called out of his room by some midnight escapade. He was obliged as a matter of duty to pursue the disturbers, and with his long legs he soon found himself gaining rapidly upon them. Then his solemn voice rang out suddenly into the night: "Gentlemen, gentlemen, if you don't run a little faster, I shall be obliged to overtake you!"

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because —

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You don't smoke? If you are a man haven't they said: "Are you afraid of being feminine?" If you are a woman, haven't they said, "You are a prude?" Suppose they have! Smoking is but a habit. It has nothing to do with your character. It does test your character, though, to be gayed. Let them laugh; the longer you stick to your belief the stronger you are. Of course you'll come out all right if you don't look down on others who hold different opinions.

SO

Your Get-a-way Here Is: You save money, you have a right to smoke or not to smoke, and you can prove by your conduct that you are as sociable without as with the weed.

Why Bake At Home

when you can buy bread like it, ready baked?

COUNT the raisins—at least eight big, plump, tender fruit-meats to the slice.

Taste it—see how the raisin flavor permeates the bread.

No need to bake at home when we've arranged with bakers in almost every town and city to bake this full-fruited raisin bread.

Just 'phone and they'll deliver it—all ready to surprise the family tonight.

It comes from master bakers' modern ovens in your city. And it's made with Sun-Maid Raisins.

That's another reason for its superiority. A rare combination of nutritious cereal and fruit—both good and good for you, so you should serve it at least twice a week.

Use Sun-Maid Raisins also in puddings, cakes and cookies. You may be offered other brands that you know less well than Sun-Maids, but the kind you want is the kind you know is good. Insist, therefore, on Sun-Maid brand. They cost no more than ordinary raisins.

CALLS FOR NEW DICTIONARY

New York Newspaper Condemns the Present Ones as Cumbersome and Disconcerting.

Like many books called classics, which we speak of reverently and never look at, the dictionary of our language seems to be falling into disuse; we seldom consult it. If a strange word "swims into our ken" we regard it as an impertinence or we use it as a kind of game; we argue about it, discuss it, and perhaps write to the newspapers for a definition, but we don't consult the dictionary.

Perhaps the reason for our neglect is that the unabridged dictionary is too cumbersome and it gives too many meanings, though thin papers cut the ordinary bulk. Simple words therein are found to be both noun and verb (spelled alike), and sometimes they have more than a dozen distinct meanings. This is disconcerting. There may be room for a dictionary with the obsolete and archaic words left out, a true Twentieth-century dictionary that shall be fool proof.—New York Herald.

In the Majority.

The pessimist looks regretfully back; the optimist looks joyfully forward; the ordinary mortal just groans and smiles through today.—Boston Transcript.

REMEMBERED HIS DEAD PET

Boy Who Kept Green the Memory of His Favorite Deserved to Have Christmas Tree.

After he had spent many minutes looking over the Christmas tree display of a Kings Highway (Brooklyn) store, a small boy approached the dealer and timidly asked how much the cheapest tree in the stock would cost, says the New York Sun.

"Fifty cents," replied the dealer, and then noting the look of disappointment on the boy's face, asked him if that was too much.

"Yes, sir," responded the youth. "I'm afraid it is. I've got only 25 cents, which I saved in my bank. You see, it's for my dog. He died three years ago and every Christmas I have set a tree on his grave in the back yard."

"Well, here's one you can have for 25 cents," said the dealer. The boy, with a light of gratitude spreading over his countenance, started away on a run, shouting back that he was going home to get his savings.

"Hay!" yelled the dealer. "Come back and get the tree. You needn't mind about your pennies."

Criticize no friend unless he asks for it—and then don't.

Priceless Historical Relics

When Marshal Foch made his visit to this country last year he was for a time the guest of Mr. and Mrs. De Lancey Kountze, at New York. There are many historic relics in their residence, chief among which are the desk used by George Washington at Mount Vernon, the sword presented to the "Father of Our Country" by Lafayette, and the telescope used by John Paul Jones, American naval hero.

Names Washington Foundation Stone of Our Great Republic

With all the enlogizing of Washington which is done at this time each year, how many Americans think of the amazing good fortune which our nation enjoyed in having such a leader at such a time? Very few. Even the speakers and writers who praise him most usually regard him as an ornament of the republic, when the fact is that he was one of the basic causes of the republic. Without George Washington, the history of the United States and of the world for the last century and a half would have been different from what it has been.

To begin with, Washington was a great soldier; one of the four or five greatest that the English-speaking race has produced—and probably the foremost of them all. His Trenton and Princeton campaigns were military masterpieces. His Yorktown campaign was another masterpiece on a larger scale. The way in which he threw his army across the country and closed in on Cornwallis stood unrivaled until Napoleon threw his forces across France and closed in on the Austrians at Ulm.

Yet perhaps even greater was the genius which Washington showed in surviving defeats that the political anarchy of the colonies made inevitable, and keeping together an army under conditions in which any other chieftain must have given way to despair.

Soul of the Revolution.

Even with Washington to guide, the revolution came within a hair's breadth of defeat. Without his leadership, it must have failed altogether. Doubtless the struggle would have been renewed at more opportune time, but the loss would have been terrific, not only to America, but to the world. More than one British historian has seen and said that in resisting the encroaching tyranny of George III, Americans were maintaining English liberties as well as their own.

In making a new nation out of the jarring states, Washington's political sagacity was as vital as his military skill in the war. He was as great an administrator as he had been a soldier; and in the beginning he was the one man whom all factions trusted. When he took office, the country was bankrupt, chaotic, torn by sectional clashes, destitute of any authority which could be asserted against determined opposition. When he retired to private life, eight years later, the nation's credit was high, sectional differences had begun to die away, an attempt at rebellion had been crushed, the new government was a going concern. One may doubt if anyone save Washington could have accomplished such results.

His Gifts Many and Varied.

But military and political gifts alike would have been of less permanent value to his country, had they not been guided by a lofty patriotism for which no words are adequate. Every observer in Europe and most of those in America expected Washington to make himself king, in fact if not in name. In the existing state of the country, he could have done so with little difficulty, and been hailed as a heaven-sent savior.

History shows that any people who have suffered from anarchy as our ancestors did in the years from 1776 to 1789, will accept the rule of the strong hand as a refuge. That fact explains the career of a long succession of chieftains from Charles Martel to Porfirio Diaz. Even so late as 1800, Aaron Burr said that anyone who secured the Presidency and then gave it up was a fool. But Burr came too late. Washington had been President, and after two terms had stepped down to the position of a private citizen, thereby setting a precedent which has prevailed to this day.

Surely, the fates never were kinder to any nation than they were to America, in granting such a man for leader at the very beginning of its national life. Washington was not a political prophet, like Jefferson; he enunciated no new principles. He was not a crusader, like Lincoln; it did not occur to him to devote his life to the destruction of slavery. But in the combination of martial genius, administrative skill and unsullied, unambitious patriotism, he stands without a peer; and Byron's grim remark that mankind has produced but one Washington remains true.

All the greater and more astounding is our good fortune that he was born in America.—Chicago Herald.

GREATEST MAN IN CONGRESS

Patrick Henry's Generous Tribute to Washington as to Information and Sound Judgment.

When Patrick Henry was asked whom he regarded as the greatest man in the First Continental congress he answered: "If you speak of eloquence, Mr. Rutledge, of South Carolina, is by far the greatest orator; but if you speak of solid information and sound judgment, Colonel Washington is unquestionably the greatest man on that floor."

It used to be the fashion, on the recurring anniversaries of the birth of this man, to draw from his career and his character lessons which might be useful to citizens of the republic which he was largely instrumental in creating. Present-day Americans do not relish such didactic advice, but, after all, there was use in the custom, and there might be today if the people were inclined to heed it.

And if they were, what better subject for meditation today could they find than the implication of that remark of Henry's? Was there ever a time when solid information and sound judgment were more needed than today?—Baltimore Sun.

Why Farmers are Turning to for Economical Transportation

In 1922 Chevrolet jumped from seventh to second place in sales of all cars, and to first place in sales of fully equipped modern cars.

Purchases by farmers were the chief factor in this remarkable development.

Farmers want automobiles not only of low first price, but also of low later cost for operation and maintenance.

They want room, comfort, and the ability to stand up under hard conditions.

They find that Chevrolet, fully equipped as sold, is the best value per dollar in the low-priced field, and neighbors tell them it costs less per mile to operate.

YOU are more likely to succeed in life between the ages of 33 and 38 than before or after. Judged by business success, that is the prime of life.

At least such is the conclusion based on a recent survey made by the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company. Out of thousands of typical individuals studied, it was found that of those between the ages of 33 and 38, just 36 out of a hundred could be counted as business failures, while 64 were successful. Of those under 23 years old, 49 out of a hundred were successful and 51 failures. Between 24 and 32 years, 58 out of a hundred were successful and 42 failures. After the period of greatest success the number of successes dropped to 53 out of every hundred between the ages of 39 and 44. After 45 the chances of the individual for success are just fifty-fifty.

Which is as good a bet as a real sportsman ever looks for.

A MOTTO FOR EVERYONE: "When You Buy A Radio Set Buy A Good One"

Western Electric No. 10-A Loud Speaking Telephone Outfit.

There are so many Radio Sets on the market to-day that are a waste of money to buy. Most sets howl and crackle and are usually not loud or distinct enough for a person to hear when standing a few feet from the horn.

I am offering to you a set that is absolutely noiseless. It has a long distance Regenerative Tuner with a Western Electric Loud Speaker. This Loud Speaker represents one of the highest achievements in the Electrical and Acoustical Arts as they exist today. This set has a five point switch, with which you can receive Radio Broadcasting as soft or as loud as you please. By looking at the picture you can see this switch. When same is on the button shown the Broadcasting comes in real soft. By moving the switch over the sound increases with each button. When the last button is used, the sound will be loud enough to fill an ordinary hall or church. This switch thereby enables you to entertain at will, your own family or a party of hundreds. The horn is noiseless and being made of wood, it gives a clear distinct tone. The Detector or Tuner is high class, being easily tuned and capable of receiving at a distance of two thousand (2,000) miles or more. Mr. Wm. Hewson of Orland has one of these sets and has heard loud and clear practically every large station in the United States and Canada.

The above set installed Complete and Guaranteed to give Satisfaction, with two 80 Amp. hour storage batteries, for $295.

For those who own a 32 volt electric light plant the above set can use the plant batteries. Price complete (less batteries) $245.00. For those who are supplied with the 110 volt Electricity, a 125 amp. hour storage battery and a HomCharger is furnished. This HomCharger will fully charge your 6 or 12 volt Radio or automobile battery over night at a cost of 5 cents. Price of above set installed complete $295.00.

I also install smaller sets, prices ranging from $75 to $200 per set.

With every set installed, regardless of price, a year's subscription is given to the "Radio News", a magazine giving the daily programs of the principle Broadcasting Stations in the United States. This magazine comes weekly.

I have on hand for quick disposal three complete sets using W. D. 11 tubes and dry cell batteries instead of storage batteries. The sets consist of a tuner, W. D. 11 tube, adapter, 22½ volt "B" Battery, Head Set and complete aerial. Price $33.50. If you wish same installed add $5.00. This set has a radius of about 400 miles.

I also have on hand a supply of books "Radio of Today and Tomorrow" by David Sarnett. A postal card will bring one to you free of charge.
